65.7% alc./vol

Willett is a well-known name in the Whiskey business and stands for a long tradition of dealing in Kentucky Bourbon and even in producing it. George T Stagg Kentucky Straight Bourbon, Frankfort, Kentucky 120

Uncut 138.8 proof

George T. Stagg was born December 19, 1835, in Garrard County, Kentucky. In November 1861 he enlisted in the Union Army during the U. S. Civil War when he received a field commission to first lieutenant in January 1862 and a promotion to Captain a year later. Stagg & Taylor formed E.H. Taylor, Jr. & Co. with Stagg as the President. Together they built the most dominant American distillery of the 19th century, now known as Buffalo Trace Distillery.

Hazelburn 12 y.o., "Oloroso Sherry Cask", Argyll & Bute, Campbeltown 85

49.9 alc./vol

Springbank was established by the Reid Brothers in 1828. The Reid Brothers sold the distillery in 1837 to John and William Mitchell. Later, the son of John Mitchell joined the business, which became J&A Mitchell. After shutting down temporarily in 1926 due to the effects of the Prohibition in the United States, the distillery began operating again in 1936. The distillery closed down in 1979 due to the poor state of the UK economy, and reopened in 1989. In 1993, it was revealed that Springbank was the supplier of miniature whisky bottles that were being sold at Balmoral Castle. The company distilled its Hazelburn brand for the first time in 1997.

Glendronach 1993 25 y.o., "Sherry Cask", Highland, Forgue 135

48.2% alc./vol

The GlenDronach distillery was founded in 1826 by James Allardice and quickly established itself as a prominent single malt Scotch whisky producer, known for its sherry-matured expressions. Despite a fire in 1837, a period of bankruptcy for Allardice, and several changes in ownership, the distillery persevered, maintaining its dedication to traditional production methods and sherry cask maturation.

Clarendon 2004 17 y.o, Lionel Town, Jamaica 65

57.1% alc./vol

In 1949, the Clarendon distillery, in the south of the country, was created. In 1953, the Canadians of Seagram became owners of Long Pond. Its rums were then used in the composition of their Captain Morgan blend, created in 1944. In 1955, it was Innswood's turn (in the south-east) to come into operation.

SCOTCH WHISKY

Scotch whisky is more than a drink; it's a cultural emblem and the national drink of Scotland. It carries the weight of a history dating back over 500 years. The earliest records of whisky production in Scotland date back to the late 15th century, and since then, it has evolved while retaining its deep-rooted heritage.

The creation of Scotch whisky is governed by strict regulations that contribute to its exceptional quality. By law, Scotch whisky must be made from water, barley, and/or other grains, and yeast. No additional flavours can be added after distillation, except for caramel colouring to regulate colour.. The purest, freshest water is necessary to uphold the name Scotch has been handed down over the years, as does the crop of barley or other grain sourced.

CAMPBELTOWN

30ML

Campbeltown whiskies are known for a distinct combination of sweet, fruity, smoky, and salty notes, often with a rich, oily texture and a characteristic "industrial funk" that includes earthy or mineral undertones. Their coastal location imparts a subtle maritime or briny quality to the flavour, while the presence of peat offers a balanced smoke. These unique characteristics stem from Campbeltown's history as a former whisky capital, with only a few distilleries now producing these enduringly distinctive single malts.

ISLAY AND THE ISLANDS

30ML

The most distinctive and complex whiskies of all are those that hail from Islay, an island located just off the west coast of the mainland. They are known for their strong peatiness, backed up by coastal influences such as sea air, iodine and seaweed. All along and up the coast the harsh environs take hold of the whiskies, from Arran to Orkney, creating robust, warming drams, perfect for the hip flask on that trek to the end of the Loch.

HIGHLANDS

30ML

These are epitomised by those from its famous sub region known as Speyside, which has the highest concentration of malt distilleries; over half of those throughout Scotland in fact. Because they cover such a wide region, the styles vary greatly, but quite often they tend to be light to medium bodied, showing grassy and floral notes, dried fruit and heather honey, backed up by tones of orchard fruits and spice.

SPEYSIDE

30ML

A Speyside whisky is one that has been produced in the area known as Speyside, Scotland. A Speyside whisky is also classed as a subdivision of the Highland region, so the true regional taste is open for debate. For a whisky to be classed as a Speyside, it needs to be created near the river Spey. As a rule of thumb, if distilleries source their water from the Spey or any springs or streams that feed into this river, their tipple can be classed as a Speyside whisky.

IRISH WHISKEY

30ML

From just across the water comes a completely different dram all together: The Irish Pure Pot Still. Made in just a handful of distilleries these days, the Irish were responsible for one of the liquor industry's greatest breakthroughs: Continuous Distillation. This meant that a spirit could be produced faster, in higher volumes and with greater purity than its counterparts to the east. The result is a lighter, malty, smooth and at times honeyed spirit.

AMERICAN WHISKEY

American whiskey is a diverse category of whiskey made in the United States from a fermented mash of grains, such as corn, rye, or wheat, and aged in new, charred oak barrels. It is known for a variety of flavor profiles, including sweet notes of vanilla and caramel, or spicier notes from rye. Key types include Bourbon (at least 51% corn), Tennessee Whiskey (bourbon filtered through maple charcoal), and Rye Whiskey (at least 51% rye).

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT RYE WHISKEY 30ML

In the United States, “rye whiskey” is, by law, made from a mash of at least 51% rye. (The other ingredients of the mash are usually corn and malted barley.) Rye whiskey was the prevalent whiskey of the North-Eastern States, especially Pennsylvania and Maryland, but largely disappeared after Prohibition.

Bourbon takes its name from Bourbon County, Kentucky, once the major transshipment site for distilled spirits heading down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans. Barrels shipped from its ports were stamped with the county's name, and Bourbon and whiskey soon became synonymous. Congressional proclamation issued in 1964 declared Bourbon an 'All American product', whereby strict laws governing its production came into force. 51 percent of the grain used in making the whiskey must be corn; must be aged for a minimum of two years in new charred oak barrels and nothing can be added at bottling except spring water, must be produced only in Kentucky.

CANADIAN WHISKY

30ML

Canadian distillers make predominantly rye based whiskies also. The distillers can also age their whiskies in sherry or assorted fruit wine casks to bolster their particular flavour profile. The resultant spirit is smooth with a lighter body than the spicy, complex straight American rye style.

Australian distillers are making quite an impression on the global stage, producing spirit to rival some of the world's finest producers. None more so than whisky makers from places like Sullivans Cove, Belgrove, Lark, Overeem, and Nant.

Japanese whisky is a spirit produced and bottled in Japan, made from malted grains (such as barley), aged in wooden casks in Japan for a minimum of three years, and using water sourced from Japan. The entire process of saccharification, fermentation, and distillation must occur at a distillery in Japan. Stare into the familiar reflection of the polished copper pots in Japan and you may witness the Speyside influence that manifests itself in this new world generation of whisky. Comparably to Scotch, Japanese Whisky requires the double distillation of malted barley in copper pot stills, with grain whisky produced in column stills for both single malts and blended whisky.

Even though the Caribbean is undoubtedly the spiritual and cultural home of rum, the category has no appellation and can therefore be made anywhere that sugar cane is grown. Molasses— the fermentable by-product of sugar production, is believed to have first been discovered by the slaves who worked the cane fields of the Caribbean soon after Columbus brought the first cuttings of the grass to Hispaniola, present day Haiti, in the late 15th century.

RUM STYLES

3 OML

The profile of a typical Barbadian rum might include a sweet, fruity note with undercurrents of spices and a smooth, warm finish—a versatility that makes these rums excellent for both sipping neat and for use in cocktails. In Barbados, rum is more than just a product; it's a way of life.

There were only 411 bottles of V Generaciones. The bottle is topped with actual volcanic stone from San Cristóbal, the highest volcano in Nicaragua. Deep notes of tropical fruit and cocoa on the nose, with swirls of burnt brown sugar, cherry and orange on the palate.

RHUM AGRICOLE 30ML

French-style rum, known as Rhum Agricole, is defined by its use of fresh sugarcane juice instead of molasses, giving it a grassy, earthy, and more complex flavor profile compared to other rum styles. Originating from French-speaking Caribbean islands like Martinique and Guadeloupe, it is often produced using column stills, similar to those used for Cognac, and can be aged in French oak barrels.

RUM JAMAICAN STYLES 30ML

The style is known to be heavier, owing to the fact that there are more pot stills in Jamaica than any other Caribbean Island. Pot-still rums tend to be heavy and robust with big-flavours and plenty of Caribbean 'funk', distinguishing them from rums typically found in Spanish-speaking islands.

TEQUILA

Tequila is made from the distilled juice of the blue agave. The heart of the plant, known as the piña, is the main source of the fermentable sugars necessary to make tequila. Tequila is categorised by the level of agave it contains and the amount of time it is aged, whereby 100% Blue Agave is regarded as the finest.

MEZCAL / RAICILLA

Mezcal is also protected by an Appellation of Origin status (granted in 1995). It is produced in many regions of Mexico, most notably Oaxaca. Mezcal typically exhibit earthier, smokey profiles and develop richer agave flavour.

Cognac is the most famous and revered of all the world's brandies, produced under very strict guidelines in only six designated sub regions within the area of Cognac. The best ones hail from a small area in the centre of Cognac, known as Petite and Grande Champagne. However, each sub region of Cognac has its own recognisable style. Cognac is primarily made from the Ugni Blanc, Folle Blanche and Colombard grapes; it is double distilled in pot stills; and is aged in French 'Limousin' oak.

ARMAGNAC

Armagnac hails from the Gascony region in south west France. The regions are : Bas Armagnac, Tenareze and Haut Armagnac, of which the first is considered the best. Main differences between Armagnac and Cognac are : Cognac is largely made from the ugni blanc grape whereas the base wine of Armagnac is made from several local varieties; it is aged in a local oak ; the continuous still is used as opposed to the pot still.

PISCO

3OML

Pisco is South American brandy but is probably more akin in flavour and body to a grappa or marc. Debate still rages as to whether its origins lie in Chile or Peru, its two main centres of production. Its etymology lies in the Quechuan Indian language of Peru and Bolivia, and from the traditional terracotta pots used for aging the spirit, also called Piscos.

APERITIF WINES

DIGESTIF

A digestif is an alcoholic beverage designed to be drunk after a meal. The term digestif can be wide sweeping and generic, often overlapping the sections outlined in this menu, with common digestifs being Cognac, Grappa, Eau de Vie and even aged quality Rums and Tequila. Some liquors, however, are taken specifically for their calmate qualities, and their abilities to aid digestion after a meal. Often these contain higher levels of alcohol, and are quite herbaceous and often bitter/bitter-sweet, commonly referred to in Italy as Amari, and others have high levels of sugar, with a smooth, velvet-like mouth-feel.
